

Summer is nearly here. As you rest and refresh, why not check out some of these Ulster-Scots from across the globe, as we look at Ulster-Scots influences

World Tour

Ulster-Scots Across the World

Ulster-Scots have ventured all over the world: America, China, Australia and beyond.

Check out how they have made international impact through quare* influential roles from presidents & diplomats to country singers, the Ulster-Scots are definitely movers and shakers.

(*really great or considerable)

(Click the markers to find out more.)

FAIRM SAFETY

After a successful launch at Balmoral Show, we're sharing our 'Mind Yersel on tha Fairm' poster.

Why not share this poster with the weans in your class as they head off for their summer break.

Click the image to head to our website for more information about farm safety and some commonly used Ulster-Scots farming words and phrases.

The Language | Tha Leid

Ulster-Scots Abroad!

[Leid is the Ulster-Scots word for Language]

As the Ulster-Scots moved across the globe, the language they spoke travelled with them becoming part of the spoken and written word in the places they settled. As over 200,000 Ulster-Scots (known in America as 'The Scotch-Irish' or 'Scots-Irish') settled in America in the 18th century, they influenced the development of the English language there.

We can see this quite clearly when we look at the words spoken by those in the Appalachian Mountains, and in particular around Pittsburgh. Words like clart, redd-up, neb are a recognisable part of speech. Hard 'g's are often dropped off the end of words (bringing is pronounced bringin); 'l' sounds more like 'w' (called becomes cawed).

Some Pittsburghers use yinz, yunz, or you'unz for you when there is more than one you. This comes from the Ulster-Scots phrase yous/yuz yins (you lot). You can discover more words used in America which have travelled from Ulster at the link above.

Click here to search the online version of this from Ulster to America dictionary.

A Quare Feed

Freshen up your summer menu with seasonal local recipe ideas.

In 'A Wee Taste of Ulster', Paula

McIntyre gives traditional Ulster-Scots recipes a modern twist!

Check out the suggestions below for a delicious summer treat!

Lamb Hock and Nettle Champ

Portavogie Clams with Bacon & Parsley Grommel

Cloutie Dumpling & Elderflower Cider Custard

TV Shows

Brave New World

In this series, William Crawley explores the legacy of the Ulster-Scots men and women who emigrated to set up lives in Australia, Canada and New Zealand.

Click on the images to view the programmes.

The Man Who Shrank the World

This episode traces the life of Ulsterman William Thompson, later Lord Kelvin, in his attempt to bridge the United States & the United Kingdom with an underwater cable.

Rock n Roll Highway

Singer Ricky Warwick and DJ Ralph McLean go on a musical odyssey into rock 'n' roll history to trace the Ulster-Scots heartbeat at the core of the biggest cultural revolution of the 20th century.

